

Conscious Sedation and Amnesia

Amnesia may be a side effect of the medication used for sedation during your procedure.

You may not remember the procedure or your doctor speaking with you after the procedure.

Every attempt will be made to have a family member or friend with you while you are in recovery, and when the doctor speaks to you, so they can fill in the gaps for you!

We will write all pertinent information regarding your procedure and discharge instructions on your discharge form.

We will also call you the day following your procedure to check and see how you are feeling and to answer your questions.

Thank you,

Endoscopy Center
